

DID YOU KNOW OVER HALF OF HOME WATER USE IS FOR OUTDOOR LANDSCAPING?

Water EVERY OTHER day - or Less!

There are many things you can do to save water outside and they all add up to some “nice saves” for California. Watering deeply, less often and in the morning encourages deeper roots and your landscape will look better! And definitely check outdoor faucets, hoses and sprinklers for leaks! Planting a drought tolerant landscape, like the one pictured here, is a big water saver. Water is in limited supply in California and it’s important for each of us to save water every day. In this time of drought every drop counts. For more easy tips on how to conserve water outdoors, visit www.wateraware.org.
